Looking for the good ones?

What do YOU call the "good ones?" In our programs, we like to have the birth/growth/carcass traits covered just like most people do; it's the beef business after all, but we also think that it's VERY important that our genetics produce GOOD feet, GOOD udders, GOOD dispositions, and at the end of the day, we enjoy it more if they LOOK GOOD, also.

Undoubtedly we've all been disappointed in the past with highly promoted genetics that didn't produce as high percentage of the good ones as we had hoped for, and we'd like to think that through experience we've learned a thing or two about increasing the likelihood of producing more of the GOOD ONES.

Take a look at the sires we've used, they're among the breed's best for the measurable traits, but along with that, they will produce a very high percentage of the GOOD ONES for those other traits mentioned . . . come see for yourself on sale day!
